Keynote Speaker

About the Speaker

Justice Melody J. Stewart

Ohio Supreme Court

Newly elected Ohio Supreme Court Justice Melody J. Stewart, the first African-American woman elected to this position, has spoken often about her desire to improve the state's judicial systems. Stewart, who grew up in Cleveland's Hough neighborhood and East Cleveland, appreciates education's role in changing lives, as evidenced by her unique path that took her first to a conservatory for a degree in music, then to law school for her Juris Doctor, culminating at CWRU's Mandel School of Applied Social Sciences, where she earned her Ph.D.

Past Recipients

Established in 2009, the PEP Rally for Kids award honors individuals and organizations who work collaboratively for the betterment of our community's children. Past recipients of this award include:

*But most of all, the teacher-counselor is a decent adult, educated, well-trained; able to give and receive affection, to live relaxed, and to be firm;
a person with private resources for the nourishment and refreshment of his own life;
not an itinerant worker but a professional through and through;
a person with a sense of the significance of time, of the usefulness of today and the promise of tomorrow; a person of hope, quiet confidence, and joy; one who has committed himself to children and to the proposition that children who are disturbed can be helped by the process of re-education.*

professionals who embody this description of the teacher-counselor, each day giving of themselves to bring out the best in children
